Queen's Park urging feds to introduce Ontario casino sportsbooks

The federal and Ontario governments are moving toward allowing Las Vegas-style sports gambling in provincial casinos, the Toronto Star has learned.

In a plan to help boost sagging casino revenues in Niagara Falls and Windsor, where the high Canadian dollar and increased border security mean fewer Americans, Queen's Park is urging Ottawa to amend the Criminal Code of Canada and create casino "sportsbooks."

Ontario casinos already have sportsbook infrastructure in place with TV screens, scoreboards and seating, but betting is limited to Pro-Line, in which bettors select the outcomes of three or more sports contests on a parlay ticket.

The new proposal would allow gamblers to wager the outcome of individual football, baseball, hockey, basketball, soccer and other games as opposed to the multiple parlay betting that exists under Pro-Line, the government-run lottery.

While the province is specifically interested in sportsbooks at the two Niagara Falls casinos, the new Caesars Windsor facility and the existing Casino Rama, any legal change could apply to racetracks, such as Woodbine.

Sources say former provincial infrastructure minister David Caplan, who has since moved to the health ministry and been replaced by George Smitherman, made the request in writing to federal Justice Minister Rob Nicholson last year.

Nicholson, who represents Niagara Falls, has been receptive to Caplan's suggestion and insiders say the two levels of government are quietly co-operating. However, no timetable is set yet for the sportsbooks.

The new sportsbook would give Ontario casinos a huge advantage over their American competitors. Sportsbook betting is only allowed in Las Vegas in the U.S., largely because professional sports leagues are opposed to them being in cities that have football, baseball, basketball and hockey teams.

One problem in getting approval to change the Criminal Code is the federal Conservatives, who have a minority government, are worried the federal Liberals or the New Democrats might oppose the change for political purposes.

Canadians will cut spending, report says

ECONOMY A new Toronto Dominion Bank report suggests spendthrift Canadians will sober up their spending over the next 18 months, partly because an anticipated retreat in commodity prices will temper national income growth.

A confluence of other factors — including weaker labour-market conditions, cooling housing markets and tamer wealth accumulation — will also force Canadians to get a grip on their finances. Consumer-spending growth is anticipated to slow from an annualized rate above 5 per cent in early 2008 to a more restrained 2.6 per cent pace in 2009.

A fire raged overnight at Hayhoe Brothers Mill in Woodbridge.

Fire destroys historic mill

The old Hayhoe Brothers Mill in Woodbridge survived 180 years of floods, economic downturns, government neglect and even a massive hurricane before it was put out of business by a massive fire on Canada Day evening.

"This mill was a survivor," said historian Ron Brown, who wrote about the mill near Islington Avenue and Highway 7 in his book Toronto's Lost Villages.

The cause of the fire isn't known as it wasn't safe for fire investigators to enter the mill yesterday.

Prosecution done at terror trial

The Crown yesterday wrapped up its case against youths suspected of belonging to a terror cell that was planning to storm Parliament Hill. The defence counsel chose to not call any witnesses at the Brampton courtroom. Closing arguments before Justice John Sproat are slated for July 10. The court heard about four weeks of evidence, including numerous electronic intercepts, videos and testimony from two men who attended the camp.

Dining reaches new heights

Extreme food event above Yonge-Dundas kicks off Summerlicious

This is a first-person account from Toronto Star food editor Kim Honey.

This is what I learned at lunch in the sky: Witnesses Sought After Two Shootings In Peel. Bombardier Most Likely To Receive Streetcar Replacement Contract. Rudy Blair Gets Fit For Media Idol.

Yesterday's headlines ran across an electronic tickertape board affixed to the top of the Eaton Centre. Across the street, Will Smith stared out of a movie poster for the movie Hancock. Forget the bird's-eye view. It was an extreme close-up of the land of billboards.

I was immobilized in a cockpit-style chair, napkin wound inelegantly around my six-point seatbelt, trying to prevent my lunch from rolling off my fork and onto some innocent bystander 35 metres below in Yonge-Dundas Square.

Dinner in the Sky is an extreme dining concept invented in 2006 by two Belgians. With the Canadian launch here, it now has licensees in 16 countries.

American Express hired the crane and one 22-seat table to hoist diners above Yonge-Dundas Square 22 times over two days to kick off Summerlicious, the city's annual restaurant promotion, which begins tomorrow and runs to July 20.

The meals were free to cardholders who reserved over the Internet. By end of day, 484 people were expected to have dined in the sky. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE no cheap meal this

The food event is not cheap. The cranes alone cost between $10,000 and $15,000 a day. Depending on time and what you want hauled up, the cost could reach $100,000 or more.

Housing, transit drive city's debt

MONEY. Toronto's debt continues to grow, largely because of the need for housing and transit projects, the city's 2007 financial statements show.

The city's net long-term debt increased by nearly half a billion dollars last year — $497 million, according to figures released yesterday. That brings the total long-term debt to $2.758 billion.

Yet Toronto maintains a high credit rating, a city staff report notes. That's a sign of confidence among lenders that the city can repay its debt.

The city has drawn up a long-term plan to improve its financial health that includes reining in business property tax hikes and attract more investment to the city. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Abortion rights fight not over: Morgentaler

HONOUR. Dr. Henry Morgentaler said he deserves to receive the Order of Canada for his efforts to make abortion legal for Canadian women 20 years ago. But he warned the fight for abortion rights is not yet over.

"The battle is not completely won in all of Canada," the 85-year-old Morgentaler said yesterday after the decision to award him the prestigious honour was announced on Canada Day by Gov. Gen. Michaëlle Jean.

Dr. Henry Morgentaler

He referred to Prince Edward Island, where there are no doctors who will perform an abortion, and New Brunswick, where funding for the procedure is limited.

The announcement has met with a chorus of reactions, both laudatory and critical.

The Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops called for the decision to be reversed yesterday, saying in a statement it "undermines the significance of the Order of Canada."

Other Roman Catholic church officials and Catholic groups echoed the call.

Morgentaler expected the criticism but thought there would be more.

"The negative opinions come from the usual sources: The Catholic church, the fundamentalists, really who are usually against women's rights," he said.

"It's not really that surprising. I'm actually surprised that the reaction is not more violent than it is."

At least one pro-life Conservative MP, Ken Epp, has come out against the decision. "Stephen Harper represents a reactionary party, which harbours many anti-choice people," said Morgentaler.

Other reactions were more positive. Feminist Judy Rebick applauded the award to Morgentaler, who she said "put his life on the line, his freedom, his liberty and his health to defend women's right to choice." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Herbal ecstasy death raises concern

On most Monday mornings the Government gets at least five or six nasty e-mails from partiers still feeling violated by the bouncers who searched them for drugs.

Guards at the front entrance are so thorough, said owner Charles Khabouth yesterday, they glide their hands inside women's bras to check for tiny pills. "It's a little much," he said. "But it gets to the point where it's complete paranoia."

That paranoid feeling, mingled with depression, was reinforced for Khabouth this weekend when two people passed out inside his complex after taking Pure Rush, an over-the-counter, legal supplement hailed as herbal ecstasy. A 55-year-old man was pronounced dead at St. Michael's Hospital Monday morning and a 27-year-old woman remained in an induced coma yesterday. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

How serious are we in making transit more attractive — especially compared to driving?

InTransit

Ed Drass

transit@eddrass.com

The most contentious ways to give buses and streetcars an advantage over traffic include designating exclusive transit lanes, banning left turns at more intersections and extending rush hour parking restrictions.

These initiatives might provoke heated debates, but a less flashy method is gradually being implemented across Toronto and parts of York Region.

"Transit priority" helps to speed up streetcars or buses by adjusting traffic signals in their favour. Most riders won't notice longer green cycles or shorter reds — this can amount to less than 30 seconds per intersection — but the minutes add up.

Transit priority has been installed on almost every streetcar route and many bus lines. One of every seven signallized intersections in the 416 is set up to give transit vehicles a break.

In Toronto, it seems there is finally consensus between TTC and city transportation officials on expanding transit priority. Finch Avenue East is next, with 45 more intersections to be added by early 2009.

Other major streets are coming soon.

One of the most overdue routes is the Spadina 510 streetcar, which opened more than 10 years ago. Another location that deserves better collaboration is the Queensway.

Ed Drass has a degree in urban studies from York University and regularly rides transit in the GTA.

Blunt talk from PM on climate

Speaks about Bush, G8

Prime Minister Stephen Harper says global efforts to fight climate change are likely to go more smoothly once U.S. President George W. Bush leaves office early next year.

"And I think, if you don't see a change this year, you're certainly going to see a change on that front next year."
PM Stephen Harper

Harper, who sits down with Bush and other leaders at the Group of Eight summit next week, said there's a growing international conviction that no country — including the United States — should refuse to sign on to targets for reducing greenhouse gas emissions.

Referring to the U.S., he said, "And I think, if you don't see a change this year, you're certainly going to see a change on that front next year."

Co-ordinated global action on greenhouse gas emissions is the most urgent item on the agenda at the July 7-9 summit of the Group of Eight countries.

$7.5 million going to biofuels

LONDON. The Ontario government is pouring another $7.5 million into research for biofuels that can be made from agricultural waste such as corn husks and manure instead of food crops.

With concerns mounting that biofuels are taking food out of people's mouths and pushing prices higher, the government will today announce $5 million for a new biofuels institute at the University of Western Ontario in London. Another $2.5 million will go toward a demonstration project on a farm outside London that is turning manure and waste water into biogas, producing enough to power about 800 homes.

Hundreds sick from salmonella

DENMARK Danish health officials fear more than 4,000 people may be infected with salmonella and are checking everything from refrigerators to credit card receipts to find the source of what may be the worst outbreak in 15 years.

Kare Moelbak of the Ministry of Health said 330 cases have been confirmed and about a quarter of those people have been hospitalized. No deaths have been reported.

He said officials at the government's centre for prevention and control of infectious diseases say the real number probably exceeds 4,000 people.

Moelbak said he suspects the source is some sort of Danish food product, most likely meat, distributed only in Denmark.

Colombia's Betancourt released

BOGATA Colombian spies tricked leftist rebels into handing over kidnapped presidential candidate Ingrid Betancourt and 14 others, including three American military contractors, yesterday in a daring helicopter rescue so successful that not a single shot was fired. Betancourt, who was seized on the campaign trail six long years ago, appeared thin but healthy as she strode down the stairs of a military plane and held her mother in a long embrace. She said she still aspires to serve as Colombia's president.

News in brief

IRAN WARNING. An Israeli strike on Iranian nuclear facilities would be a high-risk move that could destabilize the Middle East, the Pentagon's top military officer said yesterday. At a Defence Department press conference, Admiral Mike Mullen, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, refused to say what Israeli leaders told him during meetings last week about any intentions to strike Iran.

PRISON SWAP. Hezbollah's leader has confirmed for the first time a planned prisoner swap with Israel. Sheik Hassan Nasrallah says the UN-brokered exchange — approved by Israel's cabinet Sunday — will take place in mid-July. Under the deal, Hezbollah will hand over two captured Israeli soldiers, as well as provide information on a missing Israeli airman in exchange for five Lebanese prisoners in Israel.

Auto parts sector heading downhill

TORONTO. A key auto industry watcher says there are more casualties coming after two parts makers abruptly closed shop and eliminated about 2,250 jobs here this week.

Analyst Dennis DesRosiers said yesterday that his auto consulting firm doesn't think the parts sector will recover until 2010.

His remarks come after Vaughan-based Progressive Moulded Products closed 11 plants in the GTA and ended work for more than 2,000 employees during the last two days. That move followed a decision announced on Monday by Polywheels Manufacturing to close its Oakville plant and wipe out 250 jobs.

"Our view is the parts sector hasn't bottomed out and will continue to deteriorate for this year and next."
Dennis DesRosiers

Both companies produced plastic parts for General Motors trucks, whose sales have collapsed in the last few months.

"Our view is the parts sector hasn't bottomed out and will continue to deteriorate for this year and next," said DesRosiers, president of DesRosiers Automotive Consultants. "We don't see a recovery until the following year."

Progressive, mostly owned by Thomas H. Lee Partners, a Boston-based private equity firm, designed and made plastic consoles, instrument panels and interior trim for GM, Ford and Chrysler at its plants in Concord and Rexdale.

Polywheels shut its doors in Oakville after demand for its parts such as fuel tank covers and heat shields plunged with truck sales. The plant has been in operation for about 12 years on the same assembly complex on the Queen Elizabeth Way.

Boxboard plant closure affects 140

TORONTO. Montreal-based forestry giant Cascades Inc. is shutting down a Toronto boxboard plant, affecting 140 employees, effective no later than Sept. 14, "due to unfavourable factors" including rising costs for labour, fibre and energy.

However, it will spend $15 million to acquire a high-tech conversion line for its Lachute tissue plant in Quebec that will help preserve the 160 existing jobs at the tissue-making plant, the company said.

Over one million Canadians choose 10•10•yak for long distance…
Check out www.yak.ca for details.
Effective June 1st, we've dropped our rates to over 50 destinations!
…and here's why.
No Sneaky Fees with 10•10•yak! When we say no sneaky fees, we mean it. Most people don't even know their phone company charges a monthly access fee buried somewhere in their bill.
No Minimum Fees with 10•10•yak! Some companies like 10•10•100 offer a low rate, but then you find out you have to pay a 25¢ minimum fee. Why can't they just be straight shooters like Yak? Well, the answer's simple – you're attracted by the low rate and they hope you don't notice you're paying more. Egad! That's not the Yak way.
No Promo Pricing at Yak! Sure we could offer you a month or two for "free" and then jack up the rates, or offer $10 off some service and then … whammo, you find your bills are right back up there. Did you know that never in Yak's history have our rates ever gone up! Rates always go down and you AUTOMATICALLY get the best rate possible.
No Contracts*! Use us when you want to. Just try and do that with a big telephone company. Once you've signed one of their contracts you'll find your provider jacks up the rates regularly or boost the monthly fees or the access fees (Rogers raised their so called "system access fees" by 32%). How about the network fees? If you don't have a Bell long distance plan, welcome to a $1.25 "network connection fee" on your first long distance call each month – make one call for one minute in Canada and you're paying more than $1.25.
REMEMBER: Yak is a nationally available 10•10 company and our rates never go up. You'll never pay any fees what-soever. With Yak, there are no contracts, there are no credit checks and all calls appear on your local telephone bill.
What is Dial-Around? 10•10•yak (925) is a simple seven-digit code you dial before every long distance call you make. After dialling 10•10•925 do not wait for a dial tone, simply dial the long distance number you're calling in one continuous sequence. For North America: dial 10•10•925 + 1 + area code + number. For overseas: dial 10•10•925 + 011 + country code + number. No extra bill, no hassle, no contracts. Just great Yak rates.
Just call 1•866•473•0690 or visit www.yak.ca and we'll show you why over one million Canadians choose Yak.
yak
I can't believe it's a phone company.
To start saving today just dial 10•10•925 before your long distance call.
*Terms of Service apply; for full details visit www.yak.ca. Yak services are not available in all areas. Please call 1-866-473-0690 for availability and full service details.

Sundin says no to big bucks

Longtime Leafs star not ready to make decision on returning to NHL

A day after nearly $400 million was spent on 50 players, two of the NHL's elite free agents — Mats Sundin and Marian Hossa — managed to leave about $100 million in the pockets of owners.

They did it for their own reasons: Sundin, because he wants to think about it. Hossa, because he wants to win a Stanley Cup.

Sundin, with nothing but time on his hands, issued a statement thanking various teams for their interest, before adding: "I am simply not close to being ready to make a decision about resuming my career at this time."

With that, a two-year, $20-million US offer from the Vancouver Canucks that would make him the highest-paid player in the NHL was on hold. As was a two-year, $14-million offer from the Leafs, and lucrative deals from other teams.

For how long, no one knows.

"He's obviously very uncomfortable in having to make a decision right now, and has chosen not to," said Leafs GM Cliff Fletcher. "The minute Mats makes his mind up, we'll deal with it at that time."

And with a "That's Mats" attitude, the rest of the NHL went back to the busy work of signing players on the second day of free agency.

The Detroit Red Wings were the first team to move on, inking Hossa, the 29-year-old sniper, to a one-year contract worth $7.45 million that removed Detroit from the Sundin sweepstakes. But it was the terms — the fact Hossa left roughly $85 million on the table — that had hockey minds bewildered.

"I have never been involved in a deal and seen a player get so excited to take $85 million less than he was offered elsewhere," Hossa's agent, Ritch Winter, told The Canadian Press. "It's almost incomprehensible, even to an agent. But Marian is a special player."

Hossa had plenty of offers, with Edmonton believed to be the big bidder with an offer worth between $70 million to $80 million over eight or nine years.

Pittsburgh, which had acquired him at the trade deadline and rode him to the Stanley Cup final, wanted him back, too, reportedly offering a $49-million, seven-year offer to stay.

Pens give Malkin $43M over 5 years

NHL Evgeni Malkin is staying in Pittsburgh for quite some time.

The Penguins signed the MVP finalist to a five-year extension worth $43.5 million US yesterday, a deal that will keep him under contract until 2013-14. The 21-year-old forward still has one year left on his initial three-year, entry-level contract.

His deal is equal to one signed last year by teammate Sidney Crosby that begins with the upcoming season.

Crosby and Malkin took discounts to stay in Pittsburgh, as each could have made about $11 million per season under the NHL salary cap.

World No. 1 Roger Federer plays a backhand against Mario Ancic of Croatia during men's quarter-final action yesterday at Wimbledon. Federer won to reach his 17th Grand Slam semifinal in a row.

Federer breezes into semifinals

TENNIS Top-ranked Roger Federer dismissed Mario Ancic 6-1, 7-5, 6-4 yesterday to extend all manner of streaks: 39 consecutive wins at Wimbledon, 64 consecutive wins on grass, and 17 consecutive semifinal appearances at Grand Slam tournaments.

There were other numbers at which to marvel, not the least of which was this: Federer won 61 of 71 points on his serve.

The talented Swiss star is trying to become the first man since 1886 to win Wimbledon six years in a row.

Federer's semifinal opponent tomorrow is the resurgent Marat Safin, who defeated 31st-seeded Feliciano Lopez of Spain, 3-6, 7-5, 7-6 (1), 6-3.

Second-seeded Rafael Nadal of Spain broke the hearts of fans dreaming of a Briton winning the title by ousting No. 12 Andy Murray, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

P.E.I. native a shoo-in for an Olympic berth

MATTHEW WUEST
for Metro Canada

Jared Connaughton was always fast. Whether he was at the hockey rink or on the soccer field, he was by far the fastest kid in New Haven, P.E.I., an offensive-minded forward who left defenders in his dust.

"It was sort of my thing," he recalls. "I was known for it."

He relied on it. He never spent much time refining his technical skills in either sport because his breakaway speed alone was enough to make him an effective player.

But he didn't officially begin his journey to becoming the fastest man in Canada until he hit Grade 11.

That's when he discovered track — a sport he'd never considered because his small Maritime island didn't have proper facilities — and dropped everything to make it his life.

"Track and field isn't something participated in at a high level in my province," Connaughton says. "To see it as something that could get you on an Olympic team, or an opportunity for an education or a profession, was a lofty goal."

Connaughton can thank David MacEachern, a Charlottetown, P.E.I., native and gold-medal winning bobsledder at the 1998 Winter Olympics in Nagano, for helping him find his true calling relatively late in the career of a sprinter.

MacEachern was looking for elite athletes to train for high-level sport, and he found an excellent one in Connaughton.

The two connected in March 2002, and six months of heavy training later, Connaughton won a gold medal in the 200 metres at the Canadian youth championships.

"I went from basically nothing to fastest youth in Canada in a very short period of time," he says. "I think that was my awakening as far as what my potential could possibly be."

It's been a miraculous evolution for Connaughton, who, at age 22, is a shoo-in for an Olympic spot after completing a four-year track career at the University of Texas at Arlington.

"I'm considered, right now, on paper, Canada's fastest man, and that's a pretty cool place to be."
Jared Connaughton

With no formal track facilities in P.E.I., Connaughton learned the ropes in a 60-metre hallway outside his school gym, and when the weather improved, he took his training outside.

"I hammered blocks into the turf on the soccer field, I ran on a dirt track, I ran on a baseball diamond, I ran up sand dunes," he says. "The sky's the limit on my imagination, training-wise.

"At the time, I didn't know any better. I later learned it was kind of a crazy training atmosphere. But it worked for me."

He says there are times when he wonders where he'd be today if he hadn't quit hockey or soccer, but those moments are fleeting because of the success he's had as a sprinter.

"I'm considered, right now, on paper, Canada's fastest man, and that's a pretty cool place to be," he says.

His best time in the 100 is 10.15 seconds, and he has a 20.35 clocking in the 200. Both are Olympic A standards. He is confident he will reach his peak in Beijing.

"All I have to do is execute and I can be one of the fastest men in the world," Connaughton said. "That's a really, promising motivating thought to give yourself every day."

Jared Connaughton completed a four-year track career at the University of Texas at Arlington.

Kung fu, pandas may be on roster

OPENING CEREMONIES. Chinese state media is reporting that lavish fireworks, colourful ethnic dances and performances portraying 5,000 years of Chinese history are among the highlights of the Olympics' opening ceremony.

The 3½-hour opening ceremony — designed in secrecy by the country's most famous film director, Zhang Yimou — could include performances such as traditional Chinese opera, kung fu, pandas and acrobats representing China's culture from ancient to modern times.

The China Daily reports the theme is "Civilization and Harmony." Organizers have taken numerous measures to ensure a smooth opening ceremony on Aug. 8.

Warm-weather maintenance

Power washing, caulking, sprucing up are ideal summer tasks

Early summer is an excellent time to take on outdoor maintenance tasks that have been on the back burner awaiting warmer weather. A great way to start is to take a pressure washer and go blasting around the house on a cleaning spree.

Beyond a good sprucing up, a power washing will reveal cracks, gaps and wear-and-tear to tackle next. Here's a guide to a thorough summer cleaning:

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Caulking is a maintenance task that's perfect for warm months.

Pressure wash

A pressure or power washer uses water under high pressure to strip away grime on all sorts of surfaces. Sometimes you can combine bleach or other cleaning agents, but water is all that's needed for most tasks.

Power washing a roof can be daunting and dangerous. Unless you work well with heights, hire someone to do the work for you. If you choose to take it on yourself, wear rubber-soled boots and use a safety harness securely anchored to the opposite side of the roof and your waist.

After the spray-down, your gutters will probably be filled with all sorts of muck from the roof. Since a power washer may be too powerful for this tight area, use a garden trowel along with a garden hose to thoroughly clean the gutters and downspouts. Use the garden hose as a snake to flush downspouts and drain pipes.

Next, move on to cleaning eaves, soffits, siding, windows and trim to remove grit, grime, spider webs and wasps nests. Work from the bottom up to prevent potential streaking and staining. Move on to power wash porches, patios, paths, decks, barbecues, outdoor furniture and other finishes that could benefit from a good cleaning.

Make repairs

Beyond a good sprucing up, a power washing will reveal cracks in stucco, gaps and bare spots in siding, loose mortar, deteriorating window screens and missing caulking. There's no better time to make these repairs:

- Repair hairline cracks in stucco using an exterior-grade latex caulk. The secret is to slightly dampen the area with water and inject a small amount of caulk into the crack. Use an old paintbrush and water to remove excess caulk to prevent the caulking from appearing through the paint.
- Use a high-quality exterior caulk to fill in gaps in siding and around windows and doors. Less is more, so inject the caulking into the joint and remove the excess with a damp finger and/or sponge.
- Repair damaged or missing mortar using a mortar patch and a jointer — a narrow trowel that gives mortar that smooth, uniform look. Be sure to dampen the mortar first to prevent dry mortar from drawing moisture out of the fresh mortar, which can result in cracking and poor adhesion. Seal the brick or stone and mortar with a high-quality exterior grade brick and stone sealer to prevent winter freeze and thaw damage.

Wash windows

- Finish up your cleaning frenzy with window washing. Never wash windows in the sun or in the heat of the day. Use a touch of vinegar in warm water, and wipe windows with newsprint. Here's a secret for streak-free windows. Wipe the inside of the windows vertically and the outside horizontally. If streaks do appear, you'll immediately know what side of the glass they are on and can readily eliminate them.

Replant gladioli for successive waves of summer blooms

Planting gladioli is a bit different from planting other summer bulbs — in fact, the best way to plant them sounds like a scene from a summer sequel to the movie Groundhog Day. Gladioli are best planted repeatedly, adding more and more to beds, replanting new batches every 10 days or so.

The result is successive waves of new blooms from mid-summer into fall. Most bloom 70 to 80 days afer planting, though some bloom faster (55 days) and others slower (90 days). Gladioli stand tall, with orchid-like blooms borne upright as on a spear. Plant clusters amidst sturdier plants (roses, sedums, thistles, etc.) to provide support. Or plant them in cutting gardens; their blooms are delightfully long-lasting in the vase. For more on summer bulbs, see www.bulb.com. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bringing the indoors outside

Patio furniture creates a sophisticated look

It can be hard to tell anymore where the living room ends and the outdoors begin.

This summer's patio furniture blurs the lines with weather-resistant materials and sophisticated colour schemes that would look right at home indoors. Aluminum is now rugged, powder-coated and sleek in rich caramel or velvety black. High-tech composite woven cushions dry quickly and hold their shape for years.

For those willing to spend the sum required to turn the backyard into a mini four-star resort, there are spectacular pieces to be had.

"One of the most interesting trends is towards statement pieces — large, unique, oversized elements," says Eric Parsons, president of Gloster, one of the pacesetters in the high-end outdoor marketplace.

He points to woven pieces, organic curves and unusual colours as the hot looks this year.

Preventing tired and expired collections from taking over your space

OrganizedZone

Take note all amateur, sentimental and professional collectors — we gotta talk. It really doesn't matter what you collect, but where you showcase or store your collection can be a problem. Especially if you tire of the collection. Then what?

I have a client who collected anything to do with pigs. Friends and relatives thoughtfully gave her pig collectables on numerous occasions. With an abundance of porcine paraphernalia — and limited display areas — her space quickly turned into a pigpen.

Funny enough, after years of collecting she didn't even like pigs anymore. In fact, she had a constant headache from looking at the mess. But she felt guilty getting rid of the collection. Her thinking was if she had friends or relatives come for a visit, the items they gave her should be out for display.

I'm thankful that with reasoning, she finally understands her company is coming to visit her and not the pigs. Plus, it had been years since she had invited anyone over because her home was so cluttered. Once things were put into perspective she was ready to let go — and she did.

I've found it's fairly typical for collectors to lose interest in a collection and start another one. They may decide the objects of their affection are dated, meaningless or juvenile, or they may simply want to head in a new direction.

- So when you decide to (or fall into) collecting something, make sure you determine where your items will be stored. If the collection exceeds the space allotted, then you have to edit, reassess, move or stop collecting. Enough is enough.
- If you do not love dusting, be sure to have a glassed-in curio cabinet or other encased display.
- When arranging your items, remember less is more. The fewer pieces you display, the more visible they will be. Enjoy them.

The best fit is rarely the best investment

TheHunt

When you're looking to purchase a condo first and foremost for investment purposes, rather than living purposes, the most important thing to understand is that the best investment condo and the condo you'd most like to live in will almost never be the same.

There used to be a time when the key factor in purchasing an investment condo was the size of the the monthly surplus of cash flow — in other words, the difference between your monthly carrying costs (mortgage, condo fees and property taxes) and the rent you were receiving. Today, this is no longer the most important factor. The difference is still important, but it will almost always work out to a negative number.

Today, the most significant factor when looking at an investment condo is the appreciation factor.

Years ago condos did not appreciate as quickly as they have in recent years. That's why, despite the virtually guaranteed negative monthly cash flow, investment condos continue to make up a considerable percentage of total condo transactions.

The first rule of thumb is that the safest place to invest in a condo is along the downtown core. If you're renting to just one person, your goal is to find the cheapest unit available in the best location and building possible. The reason for this is that, despite small variances in purchase price due to age, finishes and amenities, the difference in rent can be zilch. There are units that will sell for $200,000, and those that will sell for $250,000, but yield almost the same rent.

The other option is purchasing a larger two-bedroom-plus-den near one of downtown's fine learning institutions, and then renting to three separate students. In many cases, this turns out to be more profitable because your negative monthly cash flow is about the same when compared to the single rental unit, but 4 per cent annual appreciation (the rise between 2007 and 2008 so far) on $400,000 versus $200,000 is double.

Therefore, sometimes the most important factor becomes the amount of money you have for down payment. If you can swing 5 per cent on $400,000, and if you don't invest it that money is just going to collect dust in the bank, you may as well go for the larger payout. On the other hand, if you can comfortably do only 5 per cent on $200,000 then that may be your best bet.

It only makes sense that to make the best investment possible you need to do your homework. You need to have a solid understanding of rental prices and appreciation rates in the various areas and buildings. Why do investment condos continue to be hot? Consider that Toronto has appreciated 11 per cent since 2006 without experiencing a dip anywhere in between.

Backyard sheds don't have to be eyesores

Rustic and charming wooden creations can beautifully accent an outdoor space

ArrestingDesign

The typical backyard shed has long had a reputation as an eyesore — useful but generally an ugly affair stuck into the corner of the backyard.

We are here to tell you that you don't need to put up with an ugly shed any longer. We have seen sheds that accent and beautify the backyard. They look great, and can they multi-task. Just use your imagination.

Sure a shed can be used to store gardening and other backyard equipment such as shovels, rakes, lawnmowers, bicycles and the like. But you can also customize a shed to suit your needs. A shed can be a gardening centre complete with a mini greenhouse, it can be a yoga studio, it can be a playhouse for children, it can be a guest room, a pool cabana, a home office, an artist's studio, or a personal retreat. In fact, if you have a large backyard, you may even contemplate having several outbuildings. We have.

We've found that wooden sheds, either built from a kit, or fashioned by hand, are often the most lovely creations, blending into a garden-like environment. If the house has cedar shingles or wooden siding, a shed can beautifully match the house in terms of material and style, evoking a rustic natural feel. Unpainted wood ages beautifully into a silvery colour and looks fantastic against climbing and other plants. To achieve this weather-beaten look, you can also use old French doors on the shed, old shutters, or old mirrors and other "antique" additions.

If you are lucky enough to have an old barn or brick shed on your property, you can retain the charm of this material in the garden by either reusing the brick, or building upon the "ruins," so to speak. Or you can bring the material in and fake the look. Natural stone, especially limestone, has a natural beauty of its own.

A more modern look can also be stunning. We've seen sheds finished in stucco or a similar smooth finish accented by horizontal wooden decorative banding.

But keep in mind that the look of the shed must match the look of the house, and the gardens, for that matter. For example, a Victorian house would look just plain wrong with a modernist shed — one with gingerbread trim to match the house would be much more suitable. An old-fashioned garden of rosebushes would work well in this context. On the other hand, a Japanese-influenced garden paired with a simple, modernist house would look great with a shed with shoji doors and an Asian-inspired roof.

Wooden sheds blend nicely into a garden-like environment.

Sheds often include features that mimic the look of the house, such as window boxes or the same lace curtains you have in your living room. Or they can include barn-like features such as weathervanes, or a cupola on the roof or dormers. These can be cute — just don't overdo it or you'll end up with a shed that looks like something out of a cuckoo clock.

Whichever style of shed you decide upon, situate it in such a way that a stone walkway also acts as a viewing platform for the garden or a pool. Use plantings to enhance the beauty of this little house.

For time savings and a reasonable price, the metal or vinyl shed package from any big-box hardware store can work, with a little help from your imagination. But watch out — many are strictly utilitarian. And that would be a shame when there are so many charming and stylish directions the imagination can take when it comes to building a backyard shed.

Ballymore Homes announces Phase 2

Ballymore Homes announces Phase 2 at Renaissance Estates. The Renaissance was an era when culture, art and architecture flourished; a time that was the source of much new beauty that came into the world.

Earlier this year, in the countryside of Aurora, a new Renaissance was born. Not a time, but a place where dreams could be realized and aspirations attained. This place was Renaissance Estates by Ballymore Homes – a private enclave of remarkable two-storeys and bungalows set in an exclusive community behind distinguished stone entrance gates.

Now the time has come for the Renaissance to expand as new home buyers flocked to the sales office to scoop up the homes in this incredible community. The time has come for Phase 2, and much like the era of the same name, the only possible way to go is forward.

Every home in Phase 2 will honour the Ballymore tradition of building unique and individual homes – 27 in total with a choice of three different lot sizes 140, 160 or 170 feet deep.

"The 85-foot frontage is very unique because all our models are about 70 feet wide," explains Wayne Milbank of Ballymore Homes. "The floor plans are themselves very unique compared to what people are used to seeing. You can't put a 70-foot-wide house on a 50 or 60 foot lot."

A choice of distinguished models is yours for the asking, featuring all clay brick exteriors with accents ranging from turreted corners to Palladian windows. A beautiful sight to grace the quiet corner of Bathurst and Bloomington Sideroad.

Homebuyers will love the spectacular list of features, including covered porches with double-door entries leading into spectacular foyers; 10-foot ceilings in all bungalows; elegant columned living rooms, conservatories and formal dining rooms; magnificent kitchens appointed with custom style cabinetry and bay windowed breakfast areas with island worktops, writing desks and built-in pantries; family rooms with gas fireplaces featuring marble surrounds and painted wood mantels, dramatic staircases, master bedrooms with huge walk-in closets and ensuites and large three-car garages. The list goes on and on!

"We have granite countertop in the kitchen with an undermount sink, natural hardwood in the living room, dining room, family room and main level hallway and all our staircases are natural oak with wrought iron spindles," boasts Milbank. "Typically there are two staircases to the basement – one from the laundry room and one from the main area. A big feature with people."

The homes will range in size from 2,350 square feet for the smallest bungalow all the way up to 4,300 square feet for the largest two-storey. Prices start at just $794,900.

"All the two storeys have four bedrooms with options to go to five for some. Some have two-storey foyers and half of them have two-storey family rooms," Milbank adds. "Meanwhile, the bungalows tend to come in three-bedroom designs."

From exclusive collections of estate homes backing on to golf courses to residences and executive townhomes, Ballymore has always shown a meticulous attention to detail in design and craftsmanship, as well as an unwavering commitment to customer care and satisfaction.

Is your home eligible for a GST rebate?

Q I have been hunting around for a newly built home and there seems to be confusion about the GST and who gets the rebate? Could you explain how this works?

LegalMatters

Jeffrey D. Cowan
jeff@cowanandtaylor.com

A Unlike resale homes and condominiums, GST is applicable to the sale of a newly built home or condominium, or a structure that has been substantially renovated.

The government in its wisdom wishes to encourage the building and purchase of new constructions for several reasons, but primarily because the construction industry is a vital sector of the economy and a leading key economic indicator (one always hears about the number of new housing starts). So, newly built homes and condominiums are eligible for a GST rebate.

When you go to a sales office, the price for a new home will generally include the full 5 per cent GST. However, when the new build is finally ready for occupancy, the builder would normally apply on your behalf for a GST rebate.

This does not represent the full amount of the tax charged but a portion that is calculated by a complex formula (roughly equal to 36 per cent). The builder then credits you this amount by reducing the actual purchase price of your new home and then filing the rebate on your behalf with the Canada Revenue Agency. So although it appears the builder is getting the rebate, the buyer is actually obtaining it by a reduction in the purchase price.

It should also be remembered that if you or a relation is not going to occupy the home as a principal residence, then this rebate does not apply. So if you were to build a cottage or purchase a condominium for investment purposes, you are not eligible for the rebate. It also does not apply to newly built homes with a value greater than $450,000 (tax the rich).

"It should be remembered that if you or a relation is not going to occupy the home as a principal residence, then this rebate does not apply."
Jeffrey D. Cowan

A third thing to remember is that if you are buying a resale home that has been recently constructed and not yet lived in, the transaction is GST exempt.

The rules are fairly complex (as is all tax legislation) but your real estate lawyer should be able to guide you through this issue and explain the necessary forms the builder will have you sign.

The Canada Revenue Agency website is also a good source of information with respect to this issue.

"A vivid, unwilted green cap is a good indicator of a fresh strawberry."

Barb Holland for Metro Toronto

What to look for

Choose fruits that are plump and already brightly coloured. Strawberries should be shiny red and have their calyxes (the green cap that joins the berries to the stems) attached.

Strawberry fields forever

A cool and damp spring delayed this year's local strawberry crop, but finally homegrown berries are here and very much worth the wait. Whether you grow your own or buy them at the market, now's the time to enjoy ripe, sweet and juicy hand-picked strawberries. Enjoy them while available in as many ways as you can, topping your cereal, stirred into yogurt, swirled into smoothies or just as is — how sweet is that?

Strawberries and Amaretti Mini Trifles

When it comes to fresh strawberries, keep it simple. These easy mini trifles can be made about 30 minutes before serving, the liquid will soften the cookie crumbs a little. If this is an adult dessert, splash berries with a little almond liqueur. Later in the season, use a mixture of berries as available and as you prefer.

INGREDIENTS:

4 cups (1 L) fresh strawberries
3 tbsp (45 mL) granulated sugar
18 small amaretti (crisp almond) cookies
¼ cup (50 mL) brown sugar
½ tsp (2 mL) vanilla
1½ cups (375 mL) plain or vanilla yogurt
fresh mint sprigs

While traditional varieties produce a single crop in June, newer "day-neutral" strawberries ripen all summer.

METHOD:

Slice strawberries in half, or quarters if large. Sprinkle berries with sugar, stir gently and let stand 20 minutes to release juices.

Roughly break amaretti cookies and layer half between 6 dessert glasses (sturdy wine glass or brandy snifters will work).

Gently stir brown sugar and vanilla into yogurt until smooth. Taste and add more sugar or vanilla, if needed.

Spoon half the strawberries and the juices over the cookie base. Top with remaining cookie crumbs, then remaining strawberries. Spoon yogurt mixture evenly over berries. Chill and just before serving, garnish with mint.

Makes 6 servings.

Strawberry tips:

• Good for you: Strawberries pack a wallop of healthy nutrients and only 56 fat-free calories per cup. They provide folate, fibre, magnesium and potassium as well as antioxidants and phytochemicals. Strawberries are high in Vitamin C — just 1 cup (250 mL) meets your daily needs.

• Storing: Strawberries are delicate, but will last a few days in the refrigerator in well-ventilated cartons or in a single layer on a paper towel-lined shallow pan. Refrigerate berries, but don't wash until you are ready to use. Then rinse gently and drain on paper towels. Remove the hulls after rinsing.

O'Neal pleads guilty in drug case

IN COURT

Tatum O'Neal

Tatum O'Neal pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct yesterday in connection with her crack cocaine bust last month — and could have the arrest thrown out if she does as she's told, tmz.com reports. A Manhattan judge ordered the actress to spend two half-day sessions in a drug-treatment program and pay a $95 US fee. The case will be tossed on Sept. 4 if O'Neal complies. She was arrested June 2 after allegedly trying to buy crack and coke from a vagrant.

Acting for the blue screen

Fraser is a veteran of effects-heavy films

"The audience doesn't want to see anybody's homework," Fraser says.

release

Journey To The Center Of The Earth opens tomorrow.

There's a quiet, dreamy tone to Brendan Fraser's remarks, as if he's not quite present in this hotel room where he's sprawled on a sofa. Long, tiring day on the publicity trail?

Could be. The 39-year-old American-born actor of Canadian descent, who spent four years as a teenager at Upper Canada College — the unpleasant aspects of which gave him material for his role as a prep school student in the 1992 movie School Ties — is promoting not only a movie, but a technology.

He stars in Journey To The Center Of The Earth, a 3-D movie adaptation of the 1864 sci-fi classic by Jules Verne. It opens July 11.

It's the kind of effects-heavy movie Fraser is familiar with. In his 1999 hit, The Mummy, he engaged in furious sword fights with mummies onscreen. During the filming, Fraser slashed away in front of a blue screen. The CGI folks put in the mummies afterward.

"In my case, I prefer to have no one there," Fraser says. "It's easier for me. You can swing away with your sword without worrying about running through a stunt man. The CGI people can then do what they do. The audience doesn't want to see anybody's homework."

In the same way, Fraser is perfectly comfortable with pretending to be running from a vicious predator in this latest movie, even though nothing's behind him.

They don't give Oscars to this kind of acting, but Fraser doesn't mind. Ever since he came to Los Angeles in 1991, Fraser has accepted without hesitation the roles that have fallen to his lot.

"I'm like most actors," Fraser says. "They don't idle well. They like to work. I know I'm one of those types, too. I've had some very good fortune in the last 15 years or so in terms of being able to work, and I guess being in this kind of big-budget picture … allows for some leeway to work on projects that are a little more hand-picked."

Booker T. among hall inductees

MUSIC Booker T. and the MGs, the Memphis Horns and the Muscle Shoals Rhythm Section will become the newest members of the Musicians Hall of Fame.

Musician and producer Al Kooper, producer Billy Sherrill and Buddy Holly's band The Crickets also will be inducted this year.

Rock guitarist Peter Frampton and country music great George Jones announced the selections Tuesday.

Booker T. and the MGs helped create the Memphis sound in the 1960s, playing on recordings by Otis Redding, Sam And Dave, and Rufus Thomas.

The Memphis Horns also were an integral part of Memphis music in the '60s and '70s, appearing on nearly every recording on Stax Records. The Alabama-based Muscle Shoals Rhythm Section worked on classics like Aretha Franklin's Respect and the Staple Singers I'll Take You There.

Juno star to hit film fest

Michael Cera movie to be screened at Toronto event

A Spike Lee movie about black soldiers during the Second World War and the latest from Juno star Michael Cera will be screened at the upcoming Toronto International Film Festival.

Miracle at St. Anna, based on a novel by James McBride, is about four black American soldiers from the all-black 92nd Buffalo Soldier division stationed in Tuscany, Italy, during the war. The film's stars include Derek Luke and John Leguizamo.

Cera, who is from Brampton, Ont., will be seen in Nick & Norah's Infinite Playlist, from U.S. director Peter Sollett. The film, which will have its world premiere in Toronto, is about two people thrust together for one night of adventure.

Disgrace, based on a novel by J.M. Coetzee, will also have its world premiere at the festival. It stars John Malkovich as Prof. David Lurie, whose life falls apart after he has an affair with one of his students.

Viggo Mortensen plays a 1930s literature professor in Good, whose work on euthanasia is suddenly taken up by powerful political figures.

The festival runs Sept. 4 to 13.

It opens with Paul Gross's sweeping First World War epic, Passchendaele.

Brangelina twins may not arrive for weeks: doctor

Mom-to-be rests in hospital

Angelina Jolie's twins may take a few more weeks to arrive, her doctor said yesterday.

Dr. Michel Sussmann spoke at a short news conference in Nice, where Jolie is in a hospital, and said she is doing fine. Asked when the actress is expected to have her twins, he replied "I can't give you a date. Let's say the birth will happen in the weeks to come."

Sussmann stressed that Jolie checked into the hospital to be kept under observation, not because of any medical emergency.

"Mrs. Angelina Jolie and her husband, Brad Pitt, told me to tell you that she is doing absolutely fine," said the doctor, apparently unaware that the stars are not married.

"Her hospitalization at this stage in her pregnancy is totally normal for a patient who had a cesarean during her first pregnancy," he said.

French medical secrecy laws are very strict. but Sussmann said that the famous couple had given him the OK to give out a few details about her pregnancy.

The doctor denied some media reports that the whole fifth floor of the hospital had been given over to the Jolie-Pitt clan. He said they had reserved just four rooms, for them and their bodyguards.

"She is a patient like any other," he said. "She is very well and she is OK."

Getting Lost with a novel

Intellevision

Rick McGinnis

rick.mcginnis@metronews.ca

WELL READ: There's definitely something happening with the culture in general when a TV show — and not one with Oprah Winfrey hosting — does its best to encourage its viewers to read more.

Books have been a prominent prop and plot device on Lost over its four seasons, the most obvious being Lost Twin, the book by Gary Troup, a passenger on Oceanic flight 815 who didn't survive the crash but left his manuscript behind.

Lost Twin was produced by Hyperion Books, a part of the Disney corporate family that also includes ABC, and ghostwritten by thriller writer Laurence Shames.

It didn't end up having much to do with the show in the end, but that didn't stop fans from making it a bestseller.

No doubt inspired by this show of fan loyalty, ABC has launched the Lost Book Club, with e-commerce links that let you buy titles profiled on the show, and a tie-in with iTunes so you can pick up the audiobook version (if you've already evolved into an entirely post-literate creature.) According to Verne Gay of Newsday, titles will be added whether they're actually read by cast members onscreen or just spotted amidst the set dressing.

ABC's book club site will include a synopsis of the book and an explanation of how it ties into a specific episode — Jack Kerouac's On The Road, for instance, is featured because Michael Emerson's Ben Linus uses the name of one of its characters (Dean Moriarty) as an alias in season four, Dickens' A Tale Of Two Cities simply shares a title with an episode in season three.

The selection of books is hard to characterize, and ranges from obvious (Michael Crichton's Jurassic Park, Aldous Huxley's Island) to outlandish (Stephen King's Carrie and the children's classic Bonjour, Babar.)

Frankly, this doesn't do much to dispel the image of the show as Thursday night post-pizza-and-doobie viewing for graduate students on the 8-year-plan, but that's probably part of its appeal. It's when the book club starts including Carlos Castaneda books among its offerings that I'd start getting worried.

Rick McGinnis writes about music, movies, books and television, but not opera.

Does the name Harry Reems mean anything to you? If you remember the 1970s, you'll recognize his name; he was the biggest male porn star of the era. He appears in this new episode, played by an actor (Rick D. Wasserman, "24"), in which the Deckers (Grant Show, Lana Parrilla) host a fundraiser for an actor in legal trouble. Yes, the real Reems did get in trouble over "Deep Throat." 10 PM on GTV CBS

The French Connection

Five Oscars, including best picture, best director (William Friedkin) and best actor (Gene Hackman) went to this high-octane (and largely fact-based) 1971 police drama in which narcotics officer "Popeye" Doyle and his partner (Roy Scheider) take on a drug ring shipping heroin into the United States. The film includes one of the most memorable pursuit sequences in screen history. 9 PM on PIX

ARIES
MARCH 21-APRIL 20
Your response matters to a significant person. Pay attention to your true feelings. Strange information may make you nervous.

TAURUS
APRIL 21-MAY 21
Bewilderment is resolved by a confession. Try to be gentler with housemates. Frustration with rules can't be eased by rebelling.

GEMINI
MAY 22-JUNE 21
A happy person wants to devote time to you. Ask an ally for advice, and take it. Remember to hug someone when a job is done.

CANCER
JUNE 22-JULY 22
Think hard before paranoia sets in. A rest period with an ally sweetens the afternoon. A story will stop you in your tracks.

LEO
JULY 23-AUG 23
Don't savour the news of a victory until tomorrow. You remember when love was sweet and true. A merciful approach is wanted after a farce.

VIRGO
AUG 24-SEPT 22
Honesty will glimmer through a maze of lies. Unpredictable responses make you uncertain. A potential mate is lurking nearby.

LIBRA
SEPT 23-OCT 23
You can do something over again. There's a clash with a troublemaker. Try working out a compromise.

SCORPIO
OCT 24- NOV 22
A man is moody, so tread softly. Someone misses the point and goes off on a tangent. A rebel is working to shift responsibility to you.

SAGITTARIUS
NOV 23- DEC 21
The savage underbelly of life is exposed to the light. A lover is concerned about ethical behaviour. Put your best foot forward.

CAPRICORN
DEC 22-JAN 20
Causing needless trouble can be avoided. Someone's in the hot seat for a temper tantrum. Talk yourself into taking a holiday.

AQUARIUS
JAN 21-FEB 18
A strangely romantic interlude will arise. The truth is known, so trust your intuition. Too much optimism can be unsettling.

PISCES
FEB 19-MAR 20
A new love cycle begins after noon. Your sensitivity is at its maximum level. Don't be intimidated, but don't speak till spoken to.

Trump lashes out at Hathaway

ACCUSATION Real-estate mogul Donald Trump has lashed out at Anne Hathaway, claiming the actress was only with alleged conman Raffaello Follieri for his money, imdb.com reports.

The Devil Wears Prada and Get Smart star is said to have broken up with the businessman late last month, shortly before he was arrested on suspicion of fraud.

And Trump insists Hathaway should have remained by Follieri's side throughout his legal ordeal.

In a statement issued by his publicist to ABCNews.com, Trump says: "After (his legal troubles) she was gone ... and fast! Sadly, that seems to be the way life works."

In an interview with Access Hollywood, he added: "She hasn't remained very loyal to him, has she? So when he had plenty of money, she liked him, but then after that, not as good, right?"

Hathaway's representative was unavailable for comment.

Kanye works on shoe line with Vuitton

FASHION Kanye West is collaborating on a shoe line with designer label Louis Vuitton, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The rapper was in the front row for the fashion giant's unveiling of its Spring 2009 collection in Paris last week.

West, who was joined by music producer Pharrell Williams, confirmed he will be working with Louis Vuitton to design a range of men's footwear.

Speaking at the show, dressed entirely in his own fashion line, West said: "I'm here for Louis. I grew up with the Louis look, you know. I just love the style."

West — famed for his bright plastic slatted sunglasses — has already revealed plans to release his own brand of women's wear, separate from the Vuitton shoes deal, which will debut later this year.

West has previously admitted his style is inspired by Carlton Banks — the preppy upper class character from hit '90s US TV series The Fresh Prince Of Bel Air, which starred Will Smith.

At the fashion show, Williams also expressed his love for Louis Vuitton, saying: "It's got style and elegance, man. And I do love the accessories. I am an accessories boy."

Theron feels 'unsexy' when too skinny

PEOPLE Charlize Theron feels "unsexy" when she is too thin, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The Oscar-winning actress had to lose a lot of weight for a movie role and felt uncomfortable as she prefers being curvier.

Charlize — who also gained more than 28 pounds to play murderer Aileen Wuornos in 2003 movie Monster — said: "I played a woman with cancer in Sweet November. I went down to a size six and I felt completely uncomfortable. I remember being cold and wrapping my arms around my body and feeling ribs and bone. I felt totally unsexy."

McGowan, Rodriguez split

BREAKUP Actress Rose McGowan has reportedly split with fiancé Robert Rodriguez — because of financial difficulties on forthcoming film Barbarella, imdb.com reports.

The Grindhouse star was set to take the lead in a remake of the 1968 cult classic, with Rodriguez directing the movie.

But the couple have now allegedly split following disagreements over the film's money problems.
